21) Tracing the Impact of Covid-19 Pandemic on Social, Economic, Political and Psychological Conditions in India: Challenges for 21st Century'

Maharashtra College of Arts, Science and Commerce & Dr. Rafiq Zakaria Centre for Post-Graduate Studies and Research, Mumbai, organised a multidisciplinary E-National Conference on 'Tracing the Impact of Covid-19 Pandemic on Social, Economic, Political and Psychological Conditions in India: Challenges for 21st Century' on 5th April, 2021. The conference which was actually conceptualised by Social Science Departments of the college began by recitation of verses from the Quran. Prof Mujahid Khan of Department of Arabic and Islamic Studies recited the verses and also narrated its translation in English. Prof Asema Siddiqui of Department of Economics who was hosting the conference along with Prof Misbah Karbhari of the same department, invited Prof M. Z. Shahid of Department of Political Science and also the Convenor of the conference to talk about the objective and concept of the conference.

While talking about the objective and concept of the conference, Prof Shahid informed the virtual audience that the preliminary discussion about the e-national conference began in January, 2021. The idea of several disciplines of social sciences coming together to organise the conference helped in understanding the multi-dimensional nature of the impact of the Covid-19 pandemic on human life. He also talked about the dominance of the word 'e' with increasing digitisation of the formal work processes. It is acquiring more and more relevance with the social distancing being practised as a necessary norm in the life of the human population. The reality of being virtual has been gaining acceptance world-wide. He further pointed out that being skilled at technology was almost the necessity of life today.

While elaborating on the rationale behind the theme for the conference, Prof Shahid said that the Coronavirus better known as Covid-19 has created the first global civil emergency of the 21st century. It has caused unprecedented devastation, loss of human life and economic disruption worldwide. The far-reaching impact of the disease on social, economic, political, and psychological conditions in India is still being assessed. With the surge and resurgence of infections in various parts of India, newer dimensions of the disease are emerging, and stories of frustration and desolation are being retold with greater anguish.

He further said that the sudden lockdown imposed to combat the disease in India had an impact on all facets of life. It has had significant psychological and social effects on the population, especially the children, college students, working women and health workers. The imposition of social distancing and strict security measures adopted to contain the virus, have affected the relationship among people and their perception of empathy toward others. The involuntary separation from loved ones, loss of freedom, uncertainty about health conditions and losing one's sources of livelihood have created a feeling of helplessness. The large-scale disruption to economic activities in India has adversely affected almost all the sectors of the national economy. It has also given enough reason to the government to deny various freedoms to people and legitimise further an authoritative administration and establish a police state with greater ferocity.

Prof Shahid, while talking about the objective of the conference further said that their endeavour, through the e-conference, is to understand and assess the impact of Covid-19 on social, economic, political and psychological conditions in India. The broader objective of the conference is to gauge the effects and analyse the various measures adopted by the government to deal with the pandemic. In such a situation an e-platform gives the citizenry an additional opportunity to ask questions to those in power. Looking at the enormity of the sufferings caused to the people during the lockdown one is justifiably tempted to ask if it could have been done differently to minimise the damage to the economy and lessen the anguish caused to the people at large. Despite the odds, this is the time to make efforts to deal with the crisis and learn from the sufferings of the people. This is also the time to determine the possible challenges for this century and prepare ourselves to face and confront the consequences.

Principal Dr. Sirajuddin Chougale in his opening remarks emphasised the need to have this kind of academic interactions to clarify our own perception with regard to such pandemic. Dr. Chougale who in fact encouraged the members of the organising committee to organise the conference was quite optimistic about such intellectual exercises. He chose to thank the key-note speaker and other eminent guests who had joined on line to be part of the conference this morning. Dr Chougale also spoke about the various achievements of Maharashtra College during the last five years and how the college has earned a name for itself.

Dr. Hanif Lakdawala, founder Director, Sanchetana Community Health and Research Centre, Ahmedabad, Gujarat, invited as a key-note speaker began his talk with tracing the history of such pandemics during the last century and how the world faced the consequences and finally dealt with it successfully. He narrated with anguish the sufferings of the people in the country due to sudden lockdown and how the migrant workers were left to fend for themselves. He talked about various incidents within Ahmedabad during the period and how at Sanchetana they could play a positive role. Dr. Lakdawala also pointed out the futility of the various governmental measures. He also talked about how discrimination is being institutionalised in health care system and people are being left to look for their own solution. Towards the end of the inaugural session, Dr. Karen Miranda, HOD, department of Sociology, thanked the guests.

The inaugural programme was followed by the technical sessions which were virtually categorised as R-1 and R-2 to better facilitate the presentation of research papers received at the conference. The technical session R-1 was chaired by Dr. Gautam Gawli, Professor and Director, Amity Institute of Behavioural and Allied Sciences, Mumbai, and moderated by Dr. Liyaqat Khan, Professor, Department of Civics and Politics, University of Mumbai. The technical session R-1 which was hosted by Professor Asema Siddiqui, had ten participants who presented their research papers.

The technical session R-2 which was digitally designed to run parallel to R-1, was chaired by Dr. Anita Rath, Professor, School of Development Studies, Tata Institute of Social Science (TISS), Mumbai, and moderated by Dr. Balaji N. Kendre, Professor & Head, Department of Sociology, University of Mumbai. The technical session R-2 which was hosted by Prof Misbah Karbhari, had 13 participants who presented their research papers.

The valedictory session which was held in the afternoon, began with expert comments and observations from the chairpersons and the moderators who had keenly listened to all the research presentations. The chairpersons and moderators of both R-1 and R-2 were generous in their appreciation for the researchers who had invested so much time energy in fact finding and had managed to present a good analysis from the data they had gathered. The chairpersons and the moderators also chose to offer suggestions and points to be cautiously adhered to while undertaking academic research. In the absence of Dr. Anita Rath in the valedictory session, her observations were read by Dr. Rakhshandah Hani, HOD, Department of Economics and Coordinator of the conference.

The observations on research papers presented at the conference was followed by talks by resource persons especially invited at the virtual conference. Shri Yogesh Mishra, Head, Research Unit, PRAJA, Mumbai, presented a very comprehensive report on 'Impact of Covid-19 in Mumbai' which was prepared after a field research by the PRAJA team. Shri Mishra in his lucid presentation which was full of data and information collected at the grassroot level pointed out how the measures to contain the virus have been disastrous for the small businesses and the informal sector. He also highlighted the severity of impact of Covid-19 on the life of the urban poor and those who were dependent on daily income from various sources.

Adv. Irfan Engineer, Director, Centre for Study of Society and Secularism (CSSS), Mumbai, in his analytical talk on ‘Scapegoating During Covid-19 Pandemic in India’ highlighted how Muslims in general and ‘Tablighi Jamat’ in particular were blamed with assistance from few media houses for spreading the virus in India. Even in a pandemic like situation attempts were made to communalise the disaster and spread hatred against a particular community. He further said that the tendency to divert the attention from one’s own failure and look for a scapegoat is socially disruptive and violative of human rights. It is dangerous for society as it divides the society on communal lines and leads to discriminatory practices even by health workers and hospitals against the community who is declared by media as so called ‘super-spreader’. Adv. Irfan Engineer also talked about the report of the CSSS on the topic and highlighted its findings. He pointed out there is a need for secular forces to unite and prevent such disruptions in future and blame-game against a community without any authentic data and information.

Adv. Irfan Engineer’s presentation was followed by the valedictory speech by Dr. Amar Jesani, former, Chief Executive, CEHAT, and the Editor, Indian Journal of Medical Forum for Medical Ethics’. Dr. Jesani, in a very analytical and insightful narrative, questioned various terminologies used in the process of containing the Covid-19. He, for instance, stated that instead of talking about ‘physical distancing’ the government has imposed ‘social distancing’ which conveys a different connotation and through this a new form of untouchability is being practised in society. Dr. Jesani said that the fight against the pandemic was important but not by creating a social environment where people start distrusting each other. The attempt to restrict our civil and political rights are being justified on scientific grounds. Instead of bringing about improvement in our health care system people are being locked-down in dictatorial manner. While agreeing that some restrictions are required to contain the virus, it cannot be misused to violate the human rights of the citizens. The decision to impose restrictions must be based on scientific consultation and justified grounds. The idea of curtailing democratic rights to fight the pandemic is undesirable. He also stated that despite the fact that vaccines were urgently needed in India, 60 % of the vaccines had been exported which would lead to shortages in India very soon.

The valedictory session was followed by vote of thanks by Vice Principal Dr. Abdul Majid Ansari who thanked all the guests, delegates from other colleges and the members of the organising committee. The programme ended with the National Anthem.

Confirmation of Research Visit

To whom it may concern,

We declare that Ms. Chandani Verma, from the Department of Zoology and Fisheries, Czech University of Life Sciences Prague, visited the Maharashtra College of Arts, Science and Commerce, Mumbai, Maharashtra, India, for an internship during her doctoral study period from August 12th to September 15th 2021. Her visit was primarily for the purpose of collecting fish from Indian aquatic habitats and threat assessment for her Ph.D. research "Impacts of environmental characteristics and human activities on morphology, behaviour, physiology of aquatic animals".

The stay was centered on collecting and isolating pollutants from environmental samples, as well as conducting behaviour biology experiments in the field and in our lab.

The work included the following:

- Fish collection in freshwater habitats in Maharashtra, India, for behaviour biology experiments.
- Marine water and sediment samples were collected from various locations along Maharashtra's west coast in order to assess habitat quality.
- Behavioural studies to better understand the effects of pollutants on the vertebrate model.
- Isolation and separation of pollutants from collected samples in preparation for a more in-depth investigation.

Ms. Chandani demonstrated distinct and important skills for a researcher in all of these activities, and she was seamlessly integrated into my research team. As a result, we thank Ms. Chandani for her cooperation and continued presence in our department, and we look forward to working with her in the future.

In a bid to amicably resolve the loudspeaker row, IT final year students of the Maharashtra college have developed 'Al Islaah', the Azaan app. With several features, the app prominently focuses on live streaming azaan or call to prayer, which is made five times a day.

Set to be launched by May end, 'Al Islaah', which means bringing a reform, will also act as a platform for mosques to make announcements, clarifying any issues or doubts that citizens might have. Upon its launch, the app will be used by Juma Masjid in Crawford market.

Juma Masjid of Bombay Trust trustee and chairman Shoaib Khatib said, "The app is at its final stage and by the end of this month we will launch it. We will start with our mosque and all the other mosques which are willing to accept this app can easily use it."

Speaking about app's features, Maharashtra college incubation centre director Saima Shaikh, said, "An important feature is that the mosque will be able to give out announcements to people through the app, which will help to clarify many issues or questions which the people might have."

In the first version, only the mosque will be able to make the announcements but from the next version even people can send in their questions, she added.

"We can also do customisation according to the requirements of different mosques but the main feature of the live streaming of Azaan will remain same. Other features include finding out locations of near by mosques and namaaz timings," she mentioned.

Aimed at spreading secularism in the digital world, the technology will not only be available for all mosques but also for other religions.

"Such apps will not be restricted to one community or religion, if there are other community members who would like to have an app with such live streaming and announcements facilities then it will be available for them as well.

After all it is just technology and it can be used for everyone," said Shaikh.
