"Every drop in the ocean matters", hence through this international webinar, we hope to deconstruct the stereotypical roles that literature and media promotes. Change in the mindsets that we lobby for has to be two-sided and not just an attempt on part of the literary circles and film industry but the society at large. There is a need to actively engage in this discourse by being more conscious about the nature of content that we are consuming as part of the media culture.

About the Conference

The Coronavirus disease of 2019 better known as COVID-19 has created the first massive global civil emergency of the 21st century. It has caused unprecedented devastation, loss of human life and disruption worldwide. The unravelling of the far-reaching impact of the disease on social, economic, political and psychological conditions in India still continues with newer dimensions and perspectives still emerging. The lockdown imposed to combat the global disease in India particularly has had an impact on all facets of life. It has had significant psychological and social effects on the population, especially the children, college students, working women and health workers. The implementation of social distancing and the security measures have affected the relationship among people and their perception of empathy toward others. The involuntary separation from loved ones, loss of freedom, uncertainty about health conditions and losing one's sources of livelihood created an indescribable feeling of helplessness. The large-scale disruption to economic activities in India has adversely affected almost all the sectors of national economy. It has also given enough reason to the government to postpone democratic activities, elections, and sessions in Parliament, deny various freedoms to people and legitimize authoritative administration and establish a police state with ferocity.

Through this e-national Conference, our endeavour is to trace and assess the impact of COVID-19 Pandemic on social, economic, political and psychological conditions in India. The broader objective of the conference is to gauge the impact and assess the diversity of measures adopted by the government to deal with the pandemic. Could it have been done differently to minimize the damage to the economy and to lessen the anguish caused to the people at large? An effort will also made to learn from the sufferings and determine the possible challenges for this century and prepare ourselves to face the aftermath and further consequences in future.

Sub-themes:

- Social Distancing
- Mental Health
- Job Losses/Economy
- Democratic Values
- Response of the Government
- Health Care
